

SHORT BIOGRAPHY AND KEY REFERENCES

EDUARDO ALCÂNTARA DE VASCONCELLOS,
INSTITUTO MOVIMENTO, BRAZIL
(EAVAS@UOL.COM.BR)

EDUARDO ALCÂNTARA DE VASCONCELLOS

Eduardo Alcântara de Vasconcellos is an engineer and sociologist and has been working with urban transport in Brazil since 1975 and also at the international level since 1985. He has a master and a PHD degrees in Political Science (Public Policies) and conducted his post-doctoral research and teaching on transport in developing countries at Cornell University, US (1993-1995). He is currently director of the Instituto Movimento in São Paulo, Brazil and main technical advisor for ANTP, the Brazilian Association of Public Transport. He has several papers published in international journals and is the author of the book “Urban transport, environment and equity – the case for developing countries” (Earthscan, 2001, UK).

KEYWORDS:

Public policies on urban transport and traffic, Analysis of urban mobility conditions and impacts, Public transport systems, Traffic Management